

The 1984 Wigner medal ceremony honoring LOUIS MICHEL.
On the left : V. Bargmann. On the right : E.P. Wigner.

Louis Michel at the age of 18-20 years.
Student at the Ecole Polytechnique, Paris.

Portrait of Louis Michel made by Alice Sureda.

Louis Michel, professor at the IHES.

Louis Michel - member of the Académie des Sciences. Paris, 1979.

Louis Michel interviewed by (? ?) .

Collective photo made during the 1st International Spin Physics Symposium, which took place at Argonne National Laboratory (near Chicago) in July 1974 to celebrate the world's first high energy polarized proton beam.

From left to right:

Herbert L. Anderson, a long-time Professor at University of Chicago and Fermi's chief assistant during the test of the first reactor in 1942.

Paul A.M. Dirac, Nobel Prize winner.

Robert G. Sachs, a founder and a director of Argonne National Laboratory.

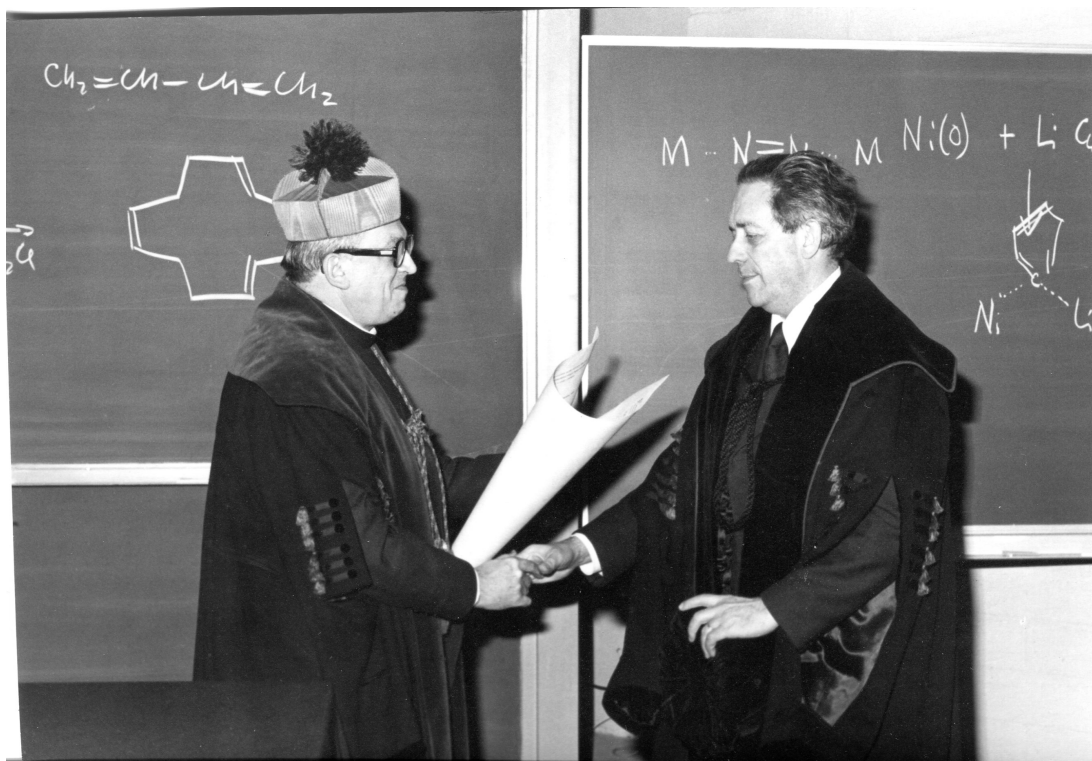

Louis Michel.

Louis Dick, an experimenter at CERN, the chairman of the final session where everyone on the stage, except Sachs, gave talks.

Alan D. Krisch, at that time young Professor at Ann Arbor and a ZGS experimenter. He gave the summary talk at the Symposium.

Louis Michel and Paul Dirac during a coffee brake at the 1st International Spin Physics Symposium, Argonne National Laboratory, July 1974.

Louis Michel is receiving Honoris Causa, Louvain, Belgium, 1976.

Louis Michel with a colleague (? Murray Gell-Mann ? Maurice Lévy ?)

Louis Michel with (? Erdal İnönü ?)

Louis Michel in the embassy of China in Ankara, 1963.

Louis Michel with colleagues.

Louis Michel with a colleague. Japan.

Louis Michel with a colleague. (? J.-M. Dreyfus ?)

Louis Michel with a colleague.

Louis Michel family. 1997, 50 years of Louis and Thérèse marriage.

Louis and Thérèse.

Louis and Thérèse. 1993

Louis and Thérèse.